that he stands under divine judgment. The story appeals for a high degree of sympathy with Jesus in his grief. And because of the story's structure, the listeners can confirm that Jesus' prophecy is true. This prophecy of betrayal is the immediate context for Jesus' reinterpretation of the bread and wine of the Passover meal as his body and blood.

RAMAYANA retold by C. Rajagopalachari Contents

Devas in heaven. The Devas complained to Lord Brahma that Ravana, king of the demons, drunk with the power acquired by the boon granted to him by Brahma, was causing them untold misery and hardship. They represented to Brahma: "It is beyond our capacity to subdue, conquer or kill Ravana. In the security of your boon, he has grown wicked and ...

Xenophon and the verbs in mi. Now, if we are made for heaven, the desire for our proper place will be already in us, but not yet attached to the true object, and will even appear as the rival of that object. And this, I think, is just what we find. No doubt there is one point in which my analogy of the schoolboy breaks down.

Deep inside I feel that fairy tales must be true. I am a child of Narnia, of Oz, and also of the Looking Glass World and Middle Earth. Last week I sat in the back of a busy classroom with an adult, and prayed over him for a serious need, professing life over something precious that was dead. Heaven opened and a strong presence of God came down.
